Why are the pages or images that I've created with tables showing up in some browsers but not others?Solution ID: S03810
To varying degrees, browsers will guess at tags if they're missing from HTML text. Some browsers are more intuitive than others and will "guess better," allowing your pages to be displayed. Others will not show the page as intended.
Check to make sure that all of the inserted tables have corresponding start and end tags (ie:) in the HTML text entered through your back office.
